NSOM's intranet captures all that is learned all that is learned in the institution and disseminates the same to all its stakeholders, on demand.

The labs at NSOM are equipped to handle intensive computing applications and are equipped with the latest hardware for both client and server computing. The laboratories have been so designed that, students can work in a secure, safe and sophisticated system unhindered by erratic power supplies and connectivity. This in turn gives them the opportunity to work 24x7.

Presently the Laboratory has over 50 systems connected to four different servers behind software and hardware-based firewalls. Access to the Internet is provided through round the clock dedicated lease line connectivity of 100 Mbps bandwidth. The software system is run on Windows 10 on the desktops and the server sides are run on Ubuntu and Windows 10. The laboratory also has networked based laser printing for outputs. All the systems are multi-media ready and run application like MS Office and tools for data modelling and simulation.

- All instructional and course material is uploaded/updated by the faculty for the students to access every term in the LMS.
- The sessions are recorded and available to students if they miss a class session or if they would like to revisit a session.
- Assignments and quizzes are also enabled.
- Facebook at work is available to faculty and students for more informal interactions as well as to disseminate communication/information related to the course.

The private instance of Facebook popularly referred to as workplace enables the faculty to post announcements, share links of educational videos, case studies and motivational stories.
